

ATTACHMENT I - Abstract

The invention relates to a metal sheet for building purposes, comprising a panel and two standing flanges lengthwise at opposite sides of the panel. According to the invention one or both flanges have a non-rectilinear form in the plane of the panel. The invention also relates to a method and an apparatus for forming such metal sheets.